PRESIDENT: None at all. Government are of the definite opinion that the morning and evening classes tend to the detriment of the work of the various offices and to the over-crowding of the profession. At a time when the work in the offices has to be done intensively and where there is over-crowding of the profession, Government do not propose to afford any special facilities to people to study law and qualify for the degrees while neglecting their own legitimate work.

MR. PULIYOOR T. P. VELAYUDHAN PILLAI: May I know whether the University Commission has not recorded an opinion on this matter?

DR. K. L. MOUDGILL: Yes. The Madras University Commissions had repeatedly asked for the abolition of the morning and evening classes and in the year 1929, when the last University Commission came to Trivandrum, they recorded so very strongly against the procedure, that we had to yield. I am glad that we yielded. The various Travancore University authorities concerned are against the idea of introducing morning and evening classes.

MR. PULIYOOR T. P. VELAYUDHAN PILLAI: May I know the chief reason why they passed this order?

PRESIDENT: No special facilities will be given to open these classes, because it has been found very unwise elsewhere and also because legal instruction cannot be kept at a high level.
